Re: Evening Study 2018-2019

Dear Parent/Guardian,

Vital to any student's success is effective study. Consequently, it is widely recognised that supervised study is of huge benefit to those students who participate, reflected yearly in State Examination results. Throughout the coming academic year Creagh College will offer supervised study after school hours Monday through Friday.

Study will commence on Mondays at 4.10pm and at 3.30pm on Tuesday - Friday. Students have a short break after school to get organised before they begin, a ten-minute break after the first hour, with study concluding each evening at 5.50pm.

Payment can only be made electronically through the school's Way 2 Pay system and can be made in as many installments as necessary.

There is a 50% discount for siblings.

Learning for life

- Every student's journal is stamped each evening to mark attendance. Should a student need to leave early a note from their parent/guardian must be presented at the beginning of the study session. Students will not be allowed to leave the study premises without one.
- The study supervisor can only accept responsibility for registered students when they are present in the study room.
- The use of iPads during study is permitted solely for educational purposes. All other electronic devices may not be used.
- Any students wishing to cease attending evening study will be required to submit an Intention to Cease Evening Study form. This form will be available upon request from Mr Mac Raghnaill. Fees paid up to this point will be non-refundable.

I would like to take this opportunity to encourage all students to avail of this service. Students will benefit from working in an environment that is focused, orderly, conducive to effective study, and which ultimately will lead to improved exam performance.

If you have any questions or queries please do not hesitate to contact me through the school journal, the school office, or via email at creaghcollegeeveningstudy@wwetb.ie

Le dea-ghuí,

Ciarán Mac Raghnaill
